

WEBSITES FOR OUTSIDE SCHOLARSHIPS

Are you a web surfer?

If so, you may find these websites below useful and informative. In my experience few students have received substantial aid from outside scholarships, but it is, however, worth a try. Less than 1% of all student aid comes from private scholarships; 99% is from federal, state and college sources.

What is an outside scholarship?

An “outside” scholarship is scholarship money that comes from sources other than the college or government such as high schools, local and national corporations, community organizations, etc.

*Caution****

Avoid advertisements for companies that charge a fee to find scholarships. In most cases, they only send you a list of addresses you can write to for possible scholarships. The same information is available at no charge just by doing research on the Internet. Be a careful consumer and do not provide personal information such as bank account or Social Security numbers.
